

THE STATE REPUBLICAN

JEFFERSON CITY, MISSOURI

Subscription, $1.00 Per Year.

F. G. FULTON, Business Manager.

Thursday, March 6, 1890.

Mr. Musick should ascertain why, if he is boss, he is not boss.

Geo. W. Dyer will attend the national league convention at Nashville this week.

Tax bill faction in New York will see to it that Cleveland will never be president.

The aspirants for postmaster are wondering now what they wanted Musick's endorsement so badly for.

The fact is published that all the big smelting organizations have formed a trust with a capital of $25,000,000.

The postmaster general and Mr. Norvin Green, president of the Western Union Telegraph Company, are still at war.

Since the socialist victory we are informed by the cable, that Bismarck assumes his old place as adviser to the emperor.

The president sent the appointment of Judge Stampfli to the senate on Thursday, and he was confirmed on the following day.

Under the new lease of the Alaska seal fisheries the government of the United States will now secure $1,000,000 instead of $200,000 as heretofore.

Mr. Sewall has been reinstated as consul general to Apia. He is a democrat and was removed by Mr. Cleveland shortly after the Samoan controversy.

The Planter House has fallen by the road side of adversity. Anyone that knows Gerardi will not be surprised, for he was the worst old growler—excepting his Italian help—in the state.

The republicans, under charge of Capt. Reed, are turning the moss-backs out right along. This is a year of honesty and good government, and those who hold their seats by fraud must go out via the back door.

Mr. Blaine refuses to interfere any further with consular appointments, since the death of his son, Walker, who kept the office seekers at bay. Mr. Blaine has been forced to take the steps indicated for self protection.

The inaugural address of Gov. Boies of Iowa, forces the conviction that he is a man of ability. He handles the question of prohibition in a masterly manner, and his views on other questions are tersely and ably expressed.

Winter weather came in dead earnest the latter part of last week. The ice men will make an excellent crop, but it is feared that what is the ice man's luck will be the fruit man's misfortune, as it is believed that the peach crop is killed.

Emt. Thomas has been nominated for city marshal of St. Louis. He was deprived of his seat by a technicality, although he was elected by a good majority last spring. The democrats have nominated Capt. Wm. McClellan against him.

Mr. Geo. Wagner, who is a candidate for the probate judgeship is one of the best educated men in the community, but he need expect no favors from the democrat party. The Tribune has had so much to say about the republican support of the Germans, here is a chance to give a degrading German a lift, but your voice has not been heard.

The papers say that Judge Stampfli has tendered first deputyship to Mr. Julius Conrath. We hope it is true for Julius made a gallant fight, and is in every way worthy of the position. While he is quite a young man yet, he made the old boys move around to keep him from winning the fight, and the future has rewards in store for him.

Kate Claxton, who is quite a favorite in the west is having some trouble with her handsome husband. It seems that Kate got jealous of him and concluded to have him shadowed by a detective, whose charges were $10 per day. When his bill for $20 came in it got into the hands of the husband by mistake, and he made the air blue and came very near knocking the detective into the next world.

The democratic party might as well look out for its laurels for it has a hard time ahead of it. The farmers propose to have something to say in the politics of the west, and they see nothing in the democratic party to admire. The Farmers' Alliance in Cole county is growing a little too fast for the old war horse, but the world do move, and it will move West out of the senate if he don't watch pretty close.

The St. Louis Globe thinks that St. Louis should, notwithstanding its loss of the World's fair, have in that city in 1892, a suitable celebration of the discovery of America in honor of Columbus. It is claimed that a brilliant and noteworthy occasion of the kind could be arranged in connection with the fall festivities. No effort should be made to compete with the world's fair but a western display, accompanied by original and interesting features which could be carried out under state and municipal auspices. It believes that it could be made quite a success.

After the smoke of battle clears away all will admit that President Harrison made no mistake in the appointment of a postmaster for this city. We are in no wise disparaging the fitness and high standing of the successful applicant, when we say that Judge Stampfli had elements of strength not possessed by any of the others. That the party is strengthened by his appointment is just as potent as the fact that he will make a most excellent postmaster which is conceded by every one that knows him. We congratulate the judge on his victory, the president on his excellent judgment and the party on the successful and satisfactory termination of the postoffice fight.

Gen. Russell A. Alger, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army, passed through here this morning, and in response to inquiries by a delegation of G. A. R. men, who met him at the Union Station, said: "I have made careful inquiries while in Washington in regard to the passage of a service pension bill, and I learned beyond all question that such a bill cannot pass. The fact as well as the south will oppose it, and the pension committee of the G. A. R. after having spent much time and earnest efforts in favor of it, say it cannot pass. I am satisfied, however, that a dependent pension bill will pass within the next two weeks. It is better that those who are sick and helpless shall receive help than that all should fail, and that will be the result if only a service pension is passed."

The Philadelphia Inquirer is unjust to Col. Jones, the gentleman from St. Louis who touched off the Cleveland boom at the Southern Society banquet late last Saturday night to the music of "Home, Sweet Home." It says:

The fire-eating Majah doesn't understand the difference between a Southern barbecue and a New York dinner, and he doesn't see that he cannot apply the political methods of the former to the latter. In Majah Jones's own Florida, he being but a carpet-bagger in Missouri, it is customary at a barbecue for the natives to fill up on raw whisky and roast alligator and then turn in and yell for whoever the leaders mention. But the guests at the Southern Society's dinner didn't yell, and the Majah is in disgrace.

It is due to Jones, who is a Colonel and not a Majah, to say that, while he once lived in Florida, he is a New Yorker by birth.—New York World.

The State Treasurer Suspended

Gov. Francis took charge of the state treasurer's office on last Friday afternoon for the purpose of examining the books of the office, during the time he suspended Treasurer Ed. T. Noland. The examination continued until Tuesday evening, when the governor stated he suspended the treasurer from office, based upon the discovery of certain irregularities in his office, which he did not care to refer to, as a more complete examination may show that they do not exist, but there appears to be a doubt. The governor has appointed a special examining committee, Charles Parsons of St. Louis, William H. Chick of Kansas City and Fink Marshall of Unionville, to examine thoroughly the books and accounts of Mr. Noland's office, when, no doubt, the facts will be made known to the people, and until that committee report the actual facts will not be known.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., October 23, 1889. T. Leach, Esq., Cooper Hill, Mo.—DEAR SIR: Your favor of 1st inst., to hand, and contents duly noted. In reply will say that silver certificates are not a legal tender, but are receivable for duties on imports and government dues, hence pass current. People receive them in payment of debts, not because they are compelled to do so, but prefer them to coin for their convenience sake.

The legal tender capacity adds no value, but the redemption qualification does. It was the inability of the government to redeem the greenbacks on presentation that caused them to decline to about 38 cents on the dollar in 1864, as compared with silver and gold, or rather their purchasing power. The total amount of standard silver dollars carried up to February 12, 1873, amounted to $8,045,838, the standard dollar was not demonitized but their coinage was discontinued in 1873 for the simple reason, "I presume" congress having authorized the coinage of the trade dollar a more valuable and desirable coin, it would have been inconsistent to mint two silver coins of the same face value, but different intrinsic value.

There were coined from 1873 up to June 30, 1876, $15,418,415 trade dollars, nearly double the quantity of silver dollars previous to 1873 coined. The trade dollar passed current everywhere up to and until it was demonitized by joint resolution of congress, approved July 12, 1876, although their coinage was continued for two years. Total amount coined, $35,953,360.

This unwarranted action of congress did more to depreciate silver in the market than that of the European nations who discontinued the coinage of silver, for it effectually stopped the flow of the trade dollar to Asiatic countries, a trade for which it had been specially coined, causing a loss to our people of from 15 to 30 cents on the dollar. The trade dollar now sells for about 70 cents on the dollar, but passes abroad for more than the standard dollar—both gold and silver coin are rated according to commodity value—the stamp of government adds no value to a coin, but is taken as a guarantee that a given coin contains the number of grains and fineness of gold or silver authorized by the laws of the country where coined.

Since 1873 something over $433,488,000 standard silver dollars and about $100,000,000 half dollars have been coined. The seigniorage, the profit on coinage of silver to the government amounts to over 30 cents on the dollar. The silver men demand that this profit of the government shall be donated to them. A. B.

We do not know that any one of the able men in the republican party of the Sixth congressional district is seeking the republican nomination for congress this year. We are ready to support any one of them who may be nominated, for we know that all of them are worthy of support. We desire, however, to suggest to the republicans of the district for their consideration in connection with the nomination for congress, the name of P. D. Hastings, of Warsaw, Benton county. We have not heard that Mr. Hastings is seeking the nomination, or that he wants it, but we know him to be worthy of the honor and qualified for the office. He is a young man of ability, popular and talented, an eloquent speaker, an influential worker and one of the most earnest republicans in the district.—Central Missouri Republican.

We hope the Republicans of the Sixth congressional district will nominate Mr. Hastings and elect him.

It is susceptible of demonstration that the republicans can carry Missouri at the next election and secure a majority in the legislature. With even a less ratio of gain than made in the past eight years the republicans would obtain a plurality in the state at large, and overcome the small democratic majorities in the closely contested counties. The situation is therefore sufficiently encouraging to call out the hopeful energy of the party in all parts of the state. Missouri ought to be a republican state. Her prosperity depends wholly upon the maintenance of the republican policy. It is a creature upon political principles to send men to the national legislature to vote against her interests upon fiscal and sentimental of thirty years ago. But for the votes of representatives of other states who force upon her own senators and congressmen her industrial interests would be stricken down and her prosperity rudely arrested. It is time for Missouri to break away from the past and fall into the progressive procession.—Springfield Republican.

When it can be done without too much inconvenience, what will give better results if it is cooked before feeding to the poultry. Oats can be fed dry—alternating, they will give good results. If the logs of the fowls get sealy, rubbing them with lard and kerosene, equal parts, will cure usually. The best plan is to give a second application in a week or ten days.
